

WOODARD SENTENCED TO SIXTY DAYS IN JAIL AND TO PAY A FINE OF $30 FOR HIS OFFENDING

The concluding chapters in the case of Ogden city against Roy Woodard, charged with five misdemeanors, were written yesterday afternoon when Woodard went into court, pleaded guilty to three of the offenses and was sentenced to 60 days in jail and to pay $30 fine. The sentencing of Woodard was accompanied by the most severe criticism of the actions of the police department by Judges A. W. Agee and A. E. Pratt.

Woodard started serving his sentence last night.

Woodard was sentenced to sixty days on two charges of assault—thirty days on each. They were the assaults upon P. G. Urdia and David J. White.

Upon the charge of disturbing the peace at the Sheffield barber shop, Woodard was fined $30.

Yesterday afternoon, in Judge Agee's court, Woodard pleaded guilty to the charge of trespass in the Sheffield barber shop. On this he will be sentenced Thursday.

In passing sentence yesterday, Judge Pratt said:

"Because of the supineness and inactivity of the police, or members of the police it is very probable that Roy Woodard and the mob felt encouraged to do the things they did and the members of the police department deserve criticism for their indifference and lack of firmness."

"If they (the police) started earlier and manifested a purpose to prevent the disturbances the subsequent disorders would not have occurred. It rather seemed that by their indifferent attitude they were more or less in sympathy with the mob and had not performed their duties as they should."

Referring to one Smith, who is alleged to have taken part in the disturbances, Judge Pratt said:

"And by the way, I want to say here I hope that the man Smith, who appears to have taken an active part with the defendant, will be found because I think that he should be brought to trial for at least some of these offenses. He appears to be equally as guilty as the defendant. I regret that he was not apprehended by the police at the proper time. I do not think the police performed their whole duty on that day."

Judge Agee firmly declared that "no body has a right to interfere with a man when he is going peacefully about his vocation. I don't care what his business is, whether he is a preacher, or a hod carrier, or a teamster, or a barber, or anybody else. When he is going peacefully about his avocation it makes no difference whether he is a union man or not a union man, he has the right under the laws of this country to be protected in the peaceable pursuit of his business; and the sooner it will be learned and understood by all parties that they have no right to interfere with anybody in the pursuit of his lawful business, the better it will be for the country and for persons who are interested in that respect."

Woodard having testified that the police stood by and watched during the disturbance at the Sheffield barber shop, Judge Agee said:

"Any peace officer who will stand by and see the laws of the country, or the city violated and make no protest, but countenance it, is unfit to hold the position; I do not care who he is he ought to be removed from office."

F. E. Miller, secretary of the teamsters' union, made the following statement regarding the Woodard case:

"We are greatly surprised at the action taken by Woodard in this case, particularly in his statement to the court. The Teamsters' union has not sanctioned in any way the acts of Woodard in connection with these disturbances and has censured him for them. However, believing as we did that he had not intended any law violation, we spent all the money in our treasury for his defense. He is today the business agent of the union. How long he will hold that place depends upon action of the teamsters at their meeting tomorrow night."

"Let it be plainly stated that the teamsters' union in Ogden does not believe in violence, in the breaking of the law or in any form of intimidation. We certainly cannot be said to have backed Woodard in any such action, without being additionally charged with having urged him to commit the various offenses."

J. C. Altman, business agent of the Building Trade council supported Secretary Miller in this statement.

Here is a dancing frock sketched in the deep flounce style so easily adaptable to many figures. Black net face, in three flounces gathered full over a foundation of black satin, forms the skirt. Except for a cream chiffon yoke, the bodice consists of a surplice extending below the waistline at one side. The surplice is of black velvet brocade in dull red. Where it narrows to straps over the shoulders, black net hangs from the straps and is caught under loosely at the waist.

DR. SAMUEL FORTIER

TO DELIVER A LECTURE

Dr. Samuel Fortier, director of irrigation and drainage for the government, will deliver an illustrated lecture regarding irrigation questions in the Huntsville school house at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening.

The pictures, which will be projected upon the screen by means of an improved "magic lantern," will be relative to water situations and irrigation projects in other states than Utah.

It is expected that questions will be asked by the audience regarding various phases of the irrigation development.

Pictures showing how other states have met their water shortage, by irrigation will be portrayed and it is reported that in the course of the lecture, the possibilities and advantages of a drainage district will be clearly brought out.

Dr. Fortier is preparing another article, similar to the one which appeared in The Standard recently, which is expected to be submitted for publication tomorrow.

CANAL COMPANY SUED

FOR $50,000 BY A FARMER

William Russell has filed suit in the district court against the Davis and Weber Counties Canal company to recover damages upon three causes of action alleged to be due to the overflowing of the land by the canal.

The complaint alleges that on February 13, 1919, the canal became blocked with ice, causing the water to flood the plaintiff's land and carry soil to the depth of three to five feet and damaged the land to extent of $15,000. For the second cause of action, $50 damages to a road, caused by an irrigation ditch, are asked.

LITTLE BENNY'S Note Book

By LEE PAPE

A basket of green apples dropped out of the back of a waggon yesterday before supper, and the man didn't hear us fellows yell to him, properly on account of we could yell louder if we wanted to and we all ran out in the street and tried to see who could pick up the most apples, more because we wanted the apples than because we wanted to see who could pick up the most, and I got all my pockets full and my hat full, and after supper I started to eat them in the setting room, may saying, Mersey, Benny, were did you get all those terrible looking green apples?

They fell off of a waggon, wats the matter with them? I sed.

They're such a fruitful shade of green, you better put them out in the sun to ripen or something, sed ma.

Aw G, ma, I never get a stummick ake, I sed, and pop sed, Well you'll get one this time, if Im any judge of green apples, if those apples were any greener they would be agens the law.

I bet you I wont, I never get a stummick ake, do I ma? I sed, and ma sed, Well, hardly ever, thats the truth, but you don't is a mistery to me. And I kepp on eating the green apples, and all of a sudden I felt a farsee pane, thinking, Owtch, gosh, G.

Wats the idee of that face, Benny? sed pop, Meaning the one I just made, and I sed, O, nothing, I was jest thinking of sumthing.

You musent think of sutch things sed pop, and ma sed, Willyum, I bet he's got a stummick ake.

No sir, no mam, I have not, I sed. And I kepp on setting there feeling farsee and farsee and trying not to make faces and making some eny-ways, and pop sed, Have another apple wy dont you, Benny?

I had enuff, Im getting tired of them, I sed.

Benny, have you got a stummick ake? sed ma.

No mam, I sed. And I kepp on setting there another little while, and then I sed, Yes mam, Wich I had, and I grabbed a hold of the outside of my stummick and started to make farsee faces and farsee noises, and ma gave me some farsee medesin and I throo the apples all out the back window except the ones I had ate, and after a while I felt all rite agen and went out in the back street to find them and they wassent there, proving sumbody had properly found them all redly.

larry where tempests raise old Harry, the bees no longer carry the glucose to their hives. The cockleburrs I tended through golden summer days, the milkweeds tall and splendid, no longer meet the gaze; the frost is falling nightly, I see it gleaming whitely, when in the morn, politely, I cuss November's ways. The night wind, at the casement, now shrieks in fiendish glee; the furnace in the basement is calling, calling me; in spring I didn't need it, the summer weather freed it, but soon I'll have to feed it coal carloads two or three. No wonder if my sonnet should strike a plaintive note; my uncle has my bonnet, he also has my coat; the summer rags I'm wearing won't do when blasts are tearing, and creditors are swearing; my uncle has my goat. Alas, that bleak November, which leaves us cold and numb, is followed by December, the blumest of the bum! Then comes fierce January, to punish the unwary; but, hoo! let us be merry—the worst is yet to come!
